

Willdan's Subsidiary, Lime Energy, Wins $18 Million Contract to Support Glendale Water & Power's Clean Energy Transformation

June 7, 2021

ANAHEIM, Calif.--(BUSINESS WIRE)--Jun. 7, 2021-- Willdan Group, Inc. (NASDAQ: WLDN) announced today that Glendale Water & Power (GWP) has awarded Lime Energy, Willdan's wholly owned direct install subsidiary, an $18 million, seven-year contract to support the City of Glendale's clean energy transformation. Through this contract, Lime Energy will deliver 36,500 MWh in energy savings by providing a combination of targeted energy efficiency technologies, upgrades, and services for small and large Glendale businesses. Lime Energy's customer-focused solution helps GWP's commercial and industrial customers reduce their energy usage through energy efficient improvements, making GWP's shift toward a clean energy future more feasible. Lime Energy will provide marketing, sales, engineering, project implementation, and customer support for a comprehensive mix of lighting and non-lighting measures.

"We are committed to accelerating and ramping up our sustainability efforts by providing a turnkey upgrade program for our commercial and industrial business customers," said John Takhtalian, Interim General Manager of GWP. "This program helps our customers meet their energy efficiency goals and helps GWP take more steps toward a clean energy future."

"We're proud to be a part of Glendale Water & Power's cutting-edge approach to clean energy and to offer sustainability and engineering expertise that directly benefits commercial and industrial customers in the City of Glendale," said Tom Brisbin, Willdan's CEO and Chairman. "This opportunity leverages the capabilities we've assembled over the last several years, including streamlined energy efficiency across small and large businesses, energy engineering, and expertise implementing turnkey solutions to achieve decarbonization goals."
